

Children identify their body parts and demonstrate what their bodies can do.

During Busy Bodies, children identify different parts of their bodies, demonstrate how their bodies can move, explore with their five senses, and investigate how their organs work together.

Everybody has a body. Four-year-olds are naturally curious about how their bodies work and what their bodies can do.

Family members can volunteer as guest speakers, take part in a Gallery Walk event to help children celebrate all that they have learned, and support children's learning at home.

Children interview a local health expert to gain understanding about their bodies.
